ACTS PASSED BY THE LEGISALTIVE ASSEMBLY DURING THE 2010 SESSION

1 Public Finance Management (Amendment) Act 2010

The Act amends the Public Finance Management Act 2002 to widen the scope of persons the Minister of Finance may delegate his powers to, include the business activities of public enterprises in the definition of "approved investments" so that Government is able to provide a guarantee for such business activities by public enterprises and to include aid grants administered outside of the Government accounting system as part of the Public Fund for accounting purposes.

The Act is consequential to the Revenue Services Administration (Amendment) Act 2010, providing for the establishment of the Ministry of Revenue under the Minister of Revenue.

3 Customs and Excise Management (Amendment) Act 2010

The Act is consequential to the Revenue Services Administration (Amendment) Act 2010, providing for the establishment of the Ministry of Revenue under the Minister of Revenue.

4 Excise Tax (Amendment) Act 2010

The Act is consequential to the Revenue Services Administration (Amendment) Act 2010, providing for the establishment of the Ministry of Revenue under the Minister of Revenue.

5 Income Tax (Amendment) Act 2010

6 Customs (Amendment) Act 2010

The Act is consequential to the Revenue Services Administration (Amendment) Act 2010, providing for the establishment of the Ministry of Revenue under the Minister of Revenue.

7 Revenue Services (Administration) (Amendment) Act 2010

The Act recognises the establishment of the new Ministry of Revenue under the new Minister of Revenue. The Act changes the Revenue Services Department within the Ministry of Finance to the Ministry of Revenue independent and under the Minister of Revenue. It also transfers the role of Chief Commissioner of Revenue from the Minister of Finance to the Minister of Revenue.

8 Probate (Amendment) Act 2010

The Act deals with the payment of money from the Retirement Fund in the event of the death of a member of the Fund. The Retirement Fund (Administration) (Amendment) (No. 2) Regulations 2009 requires the Retirement Fund to pay to the Supreme Court the Death Benefit payable on behalf of the member who dies. This is so that the Court will deal with such money as part of its probate and administration jurisdiction. The Act provides the procedures for the court to deal with any money received from the Retirement Fund. That is, the Court is required to process its normal probate or administration procedures, before any money is paid out to a beneficiary, thus ensuring that the rightful recipient is property identified. The Act also empowers the Registrar of the Court to deposit the money in an interest bearing account, while such money is vested in the Court, awaiting payment to the beneficiary.

9 Nationality (Amendment) Act 2010

The purpose of this Act is to expand the grounds for which His Majesty, with the consent of Privy Council, may revoke a certificate of naturalization. The new grounds for revocation are when a naturalized person is convicted of certain criminal offences or any other criminal offence of which the penalty is 2 or more years imprisonment, and where a naturalized person is suspected of becoming a security threat to the Kingdom.

10 Public Holidays (Amendment) Act 2010

The purpose of this Act is to provide for public holidays to be celebrated on Mondays, except Christmas Day, the day immediately succeeding Christmas Day, New Years Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday and ANZAC Day.

The Act establishes for the first time in Tonga an independent Electoral Commission, as part of the reforms proposed by the Constitutional and Electoral Commission. The Act left the structure of the election organisation basically unchanged in practice, but sets up this new Commission to give oversight and long term planning, as well as to perform some of the necessary functions to be given to it by other laws.

12 Legislative Assembly (Amendment) Act 2010

The Act amends the Legislative Assembly Act to bring it into conformity with the changes to the Constitution and other electoral laws recommended by the Constitutional and Electoral Commission. The Act shows in accordance with the amendment to the Constitution the new numbers of Representative of the People. The Act provides that the Electoral Boundaries Commission will define the boundaries of the electoral divisions for elections of representatives of the people. The Act also provides that the Electoral Commission and Cabinet appoint the places within which each electoral constituency where election is to be held.

13 Electoral (Amendment) Act 2010

This Act amends the Electoral Act. It provides that the Supervisor of Elections is appointed by the Electoral Commission and acts under the direction of the Electoral Commission in the general control over and supervision of elections. The Act also provides that to be registered as an elector in an electoral constituency, the person must have been resident there for 6 months before his application for registration. The Act changes certain formal aspects regarding an election by including the Electoral Commission that is proposed to be established under its own Act, and by providing that it is the King who issues writs of election, rather than the Prime Minister. Such formal changes are needed because the Prime Minister under the amendments to the Constitution becomes fully a representative of the people. The Act also caters to other aspects of the elections such as the publication of notifications of candidate nominations in the newspapers, withdrawal of nomination of candidate, offences relating to election, presentation of electoral expenses by candidates, form for application for registration as a voter etc.

14 Act of Constitution of Tonga (Amendment) Act 2010

The Act changes the number of representatives of the people in the Legislative Assembly from 9 to 17. The Legislative Assembly Act and Electoral Act provide how the representatives are to be apportioned amongst the electoral constituencies. The electoral districts for nobles will stay the same as has always been under the Constitution, because the number stays the same and the boundaries are to remain the relevant. Now by this amendment an independent Electoral Boundaries Commission is to be responsible for determining the boundaries of the 17 electoral constituencies for the election of representatives of the people. The Act also inserts a new provision that sets out that non-resident Tongan qualify and can vote.

15 Electoral Boundaries Commission Act 2010

The Act amends various sections of the Constitution to cater for the Constitutional and Electoral reform. The Act provides that the executive part of the government is comprised by Cabinet instead of including the King and Privy Council as previously. By the amendments to the Constitution, the Privy Council ceases to have a formal role in the government of the Kingdom. The Act also inserts a new clause to provide for an Attorney General and define the role and some other aspects of that office. The Act also inserts a new clause that deals with the Prime Minister, his appointment and the details about how the newly elected member of the Legislative Assembly decide who to recommend as Prime Minister after eachngeneral election. The Act also inserts a new clause that deals with Votes of No Confidence.

The Constitution also deals with the Cabinet. It states that it shall consist of the Prime Minister and Ministers who are all chosen by him and appointed by the King. The Constitution says that there may be up to 4 "non-elected Ministers" who are not elected representatives, but who sit and vote in Cabinet and the Assembly and have all the rights and duties of normal Ministers. The Prime Minister and Cabinet shall be fewer in number than half of the number of the elected members of the Legislative Assembly excluding the Speaker.

The Act also provides clauses for the impeachment of the members of parliament and how to fill a vacant seat after an impeachment. The Act establishes the office of the Lord Chancellor and defines his role and duties relating to the Judiciary and the Courts.

The Act also establishes a new Judicial Appointments and Discipline Panel as a sub-committee of the Privy Council. This panel has the role of advising His Majesty on a number of things including the appointment of Judges and magistrates, the disciplining of Judges and magistrates, and the like. This panel consists of the Lord Chancellor, Law Lords (where the term is first used in any legislation) Attorney General and Lord Chief Justice.

The Act also provides the procedure for the appointment of Judges and how the President and Judges of the Land Court are appointed and their terms set.

42 Miscellaneous Amendments (Privy Council) Act 2010

This Act makes amendments to various Acts and Subsidiary Legislation to bring it into conformity with the changes being made at the same time to the Constitution, especially to reflect the changed role of the Privy Council, and the King in Council.

Section 4 of this Act enables similar references to the Privy Council, that may have been overlooked or have not been covered properly by this Act, to be rectified in the short term by regulations made by the King in Privy Council which have similar effect to amendments made by the Act, if this is consistent with the constitutional changes made during 2010. This convenient procedure is limited to the period of 12 months after this Act comes into force, during which time any such inconsistencies should be found and amended formally by Act or subsidiary legislation. Any such regulations will expire after 6 months.

Some of the changes are because there is no longer to be a power for the King in Privy Council to make Ordinances; and there are also some amendments to the Electoral Laws to tidy up matters of translation and to correct references to electoral boundaries which should now be to electoral constituencies.

The last amendments in the Schedule, to all Acts and subordinate legislation relate to how the law will refer to certain Judges (by including "Lord" in the title) and also amends the Tongan version only of the expression "Chief Justice" to a more appropriate translation that does not confuse the usage of "Tu'i".
